

Ambre Brown Morley is the Senior Director, Commercial Communications at Novo Nordisk Inc. in Plainsboro, New Jersey, where she oversees a team responsible for internal and external diabetes and obesity public relations activities. She also leads communications around product and scientific data, commercial sponsorships, and strategic patient and celebrity engagement.

An award-winning communications professional and former journalist, Ambre joined Novo Nordisk in 2008, and in 2011, worked in a global communications role, splitting her time between Copenhagen, Denmark and the U.S. In 2019, she completed a short-term assignment in Tokyo, Japan leading communications ahead of two brand launches. In 2015 she was named a “Rising Star” by the Healthcare Businesswomen's Association, and in 2019 Novo Nordisk named her “Working Mother of the Year.”

Ambre is a co-founder of African Americans in Novo Nordisk and currently enrolled in a Diversity & Inclusion certificate course at Cornell University. She is a board member of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Mercer County, a member of the Burlington County chapter of Jack & Jill of America, Inc., the Healthcare Businesswomen's Association and an active founding member and former treasurer of Women of Color in Pharma, LLC.