

Jenn is a campaign veteran with deep experience with grassroots organizing, paid media, data and analytics, and political strategy. Most recently, Jenn served as the national states director for President Biden's 2020 presidential campaign. In that capacity, she built strategy across 17 battleground states and helped create a record-breaking voter contact program that reimagined grassroots and online organizing. Previously, Jenn managed the winning governor's race for the first openly gay man elected to lead a state in U.S. history -- Gov. Jared Polis. Before that, she was the mountain-west political director at the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, the deputy campaign manager for Sen. Mark Udall's campaign, and worked on both of President Obama's campaigns.
